THE NEXT STAGE

A stronger digital presence around the new MMS website

The website creates the foundation. The next opportunity is to make every digital touchpoint reinforce the same level of confidence, professionalism and capability.

While developing the new Mosi Media Solutions website, we have had the opportunity to look more deeply at how MMS presents itself to potential clients. The website is an important part of that presence, but it is only one part of the decision-making journey.

A prospective client may first encounter MMS through Google, Facebook, Instagram, LinkedIn, a recommendation, an advertisement or WhatsApp before ever reaching the website. At each point, they are forming an opinion about the business.

This document does not replace or extend the existing website development agreement. It outlines the next stage: helping MMS build and maintain a complete digital presence around the new website over an initial three-month period.

Questions prospects are trying to answer

- Is this company professional?
- Have they worked with organisations like ours before?
- What exactly can they provide?
- What proof is there of the work they have done?
- Can they handle an event of our size?
- Can we trust them with an important conference?
- How do we request a quotation?

1. What the current website project solves

The new MMS website gives the business a stronger digital foundation: a central place where potential customers can understand the company, its services, previous work and how to take the next step.

• Conferences & events	• Videography & filming	• Video live streaming
• Drone services	• Podcast production	• DJ services & lighting
• 360 booth services	• Special effects	• LED & display solutions
• Conference & interpretation systems	• Photography	• Audio solutions

But having a website does not automatically mean potential customers will discover it, trust it or continuously see evidence of MMS's capabilities. That is the gap this engagement addresses.

THE OPPORTUNITY

2. MMS is not simply competing on equipment. It is competing on confidence.

When a ministry, corporate organisation, NGO, conference organiser or institution is selecting a media and event partner, they need confidence that the company can deliver professionally. That confidence can be built long before the first meeting.

When someone researches Mosi Media Solutions, everything they find should reinforce one message:
“This is a professional company capable of handling serious events and productions.”

3. Three-month Digital Presence Development & Management

Nhanelo would work with MMS for an initial three-month period to build the digital presence around the new website. The website, social media, Google presence, content and enquiries would be managed as one connected customer journey.

01 Digital presence foundation

Align Google Business, Facebook, Instagram, LinkedIn, website and WhatsApp Business information so MMS appears accurate and consistent wherever clients discover it.

02 Website management

Keep the website active with recent projects, events, testimonials, service updates, landing pages, quotation improvements, performance reviews and strong mobile usability.

03 Content & proof of work

Turn completed projects into case studies, LinkedIn posts, social content, short-form videos, behind-the-scenes material, testimonials and portfolio updates.

04 Target-market positioning

Strengthen MMS’s conference-and-events message for ministries, agencies, NGOs, UN organisations, professional institutes, corporates and conference organisers.

05 Enquiry journey & measurement

Improve Discovery → Website → Trust → Enquiry → Quotation → Follow-up through clearer WhatsApp paths, forms, CTAs, lead capture, tracking and evidence-led improvements.

HOW THE 3 MONTHS WOULD WORK

4. A practical three-month implementation roadmap

Period	Primary focus	What happens
Month 1	Foundation & consistency	Complete website handover, audit major digital touchpoints, align profiles and information, improve Google/WhatsApp pathways, establish measurement and create the initial content structure.
Month 2	Proof & positioning	Turn recent MMS projects into case studies and content, strengthen conference-and-events positioning, publish proof consistently and improve pages or enquiry paths based on early behaviour.
Month 3	Optimisation & repeatability	Review performance, identify strongest services and channels, improve conversion paths, refine content themes, document a repeatable content-and-enquiry process and recommend the next stage from evidence.

5. What we would be working to improve

- Consistency of MMS information across key platforms
- Traffic to the website and priority service pages
- WhatsApp and contact-form conversion paths
- Which channels produce meaningful enquiries
- Quality and frequency of visible proof of work
- Quotation requests and enquiry volume
- Which services generate the most interest
- Where prospects drop off before contacting MMS

6. The long-term goal

The objective is not simply to make MMS more active online. It is to make the company's digital presence accurately represent the quality, experience and capability of the business.

When someone discovers MMS online, they should quickly understand:

✓ Who MMS is
✓ What MMS can deliver
✓ Who MMS works with
✓ Why MMS can be trusted
✓ How to take the next step

NEXT STEP

Build on the website. Make the whole presence work harder.

MMS already has the work, experience, equipment and capabilities. The opportunity now is to make sure the market sees that capability clearly and consistently wherever prospective clients encounter the company.

For the next three months, Nhanelo would focus on turning the new website into the centre of a stronger digital presence - one supported by visible proof, consistent positioning, clearer enquiry pathways and better measurement.

What this engagement is designed to create

A consistent presence	MMS information and presentation aligned across priority digital platforms.
More visible proof	Projects and events continuously converted into credible sales material.
Clearer next steps	Prospects guided more directly from discovery to enquiry and quotation.
Better decisions	Digital activity measured so future improvements are based on evidence, not guesswork.
